

To the Board of Appeals in regard to the True code violation on Marlboro Beach Road

My concern is about the violation of height by dint of building up the ground from the level the code uses to start measuring height, the original land level, before building the home, making it considerably over the legal height.

If this violation is allowed to stand, Lamoine will be known as the area you can do whatever you want, they won't do anything about it. Is that what the Appeals and Planning Boards want?

The violators continue to construct the house which should have been stopped until this is corrected.

Presumably the house plans were submitted to get the permit, so when it was seen that they had started higher than is legal in pouring the foundation, it should have been stopped then.

Lesson learned. Time to correct it.
